Description Of Work:

Sound proofed, insulated, dry walled and restored workwork to closely match original for one gutted bedroom. replaced 7 upstairs windows and all exterior siding and gutters. replaced 6 interior doors. refinished oak hardwood floor.

Mr. Contractor had contracted good hardworking tradesmen for each of the tasks outlined above. Best that have a good working knowledge of what you want in materials and type of work needed. Barry (Mr. Contractor) works well with planning what you need and how long it will take. He didn't micromanage his workers, however, it's best for owner to stay on the premises to make sure instructions and items are not overlooked accidentally. Make sure every detail and item is in your estimate and contract. It avoided issues with misinterpretations when the work was started and protected both owner and contractor from any bad feelings about the work.

Member Comments:

I definitely got what I paid for and will be using Mr. Contractor again for many more future projects. This was a work equity project with me gutting a bedroom and doing the rough wiring before the contractor started doing the sound proofing and dry wall. Mr. Contractor was reluctant at first to coordinate our electrical work with the carpenter, but it worked out despite me holding up the carpenter's schedule rewalling the bedroom with needed extra time completeing the rough electrical work prior to closing up the walls in the bedroom. The window replacement and siding work wasn't entirely dependent on the carpenter's work and the total schedule planned for the project finished on time. Window replacement was completed in one day. Some disagreement about some extra steps we wanted applying the siding and fixing the underlying structures that the siding was going over, but Barry was able to work with me and correct the issues to my satisfaction. The oak hardwood floor in the bedroom was repaired and refinished by Geo. King hired by Barry. Excellent work. Mr. King has been doing this type of work for 47 years and the experience shows with the excellent results of the floor. I hope he will inspire the next generation to take up his hard work for future. Overall the workers were competent and prompt. and Barry would respond to my questions and concerns without delay.
